In Delivering Care Into War Zones, acclaimed war correspondent Stephanie Sinclair goes inside the world's most perilous hospitals to tell the stories of the doctors, nurses, and patients who are fighting to save lives in some of the most dangerous places on earth.

From the bombed-out hospitals of Aleppo to the makeshift clinics of the Congo, Sinclair paints a vivid and unflinching portrait of the challenges and triumphs of delivering medical care in war zones. She follows the stories of individual patients, from a young boy who lost his leg in a bombing to a pregnant woman who must give birth in the midst of chaos.

Sinclair also reveals the personal stories of the medical professionals who risk their own lives to save others. She profiles a surgeon who performs life-saving operations in a field hospital under constant threat of attack, and a nurse who provides comfort and care to victims of sexual violence.

Delivering Care Into War Zones is a powerful and moving account of the human cost of war and the resilience of the human spirit. It will change the way you think about war and the people who fight it.
